Best Practice Evaluation Tool: Closing the gap Primary Schools and Academies

Why is GRT considered a vulnerable group?

GRT' is statistically considered a vulnerable group based on data relating to a wide range of education, health and socio-economic factors. They are more likely to be overlooked or failed by systems based on misunderstanding of their needs. While many Gypsy, Roma and Traveller families thrive without any additional support, those who are vulnerable to under-achievement often have challenges that are multi-generational and deep-set, requiring culturally sensitive support.

Not all GRT families will disclose (ascribe) their Traveller background. GRT describes ethnicity, historical background and cultural heritage rather than living arrangements. The majority of GRT families in East Sussex live in houses, and are settled rather than highly mobile. When reflecting on your practice in each area of this tool, consider the extent to which it has an impact on all of your children and parents, especially those who may be more vulnerable to underachievement, or more challenging to engage, and consider what small changes could make a significant difference.

How should this tool be used?

This self-evaluation tool will support schools in evaluating their own policy and practice in raising achievement for Gypsy, Roma and Traveller pupils. It can be used to inform the school's development plan.

The tool is divided into the following sections:

- Leadership and management;
- Using data to target groups and track progress;
- Developing learning and teaching;
- Effective partnership with parents and community

It is suggested that the tool is first used by schools' Senior Leadership Team and governing bodies to audit the school's policy and practice thoroughly, by assessing each area in terms of whether it is well established (green), developing (amber) or not yet in place (red). Each school will be at a different point on the development continuum; schools can therefore build on their present practice, either identifying new areas for development that will have the greatest impact on outcomes for Gypsy, Roma and Traveller pupils, or to enhance existing areas of practice.

This evaluation tool should be used alongside the GRT Best Practice guidance available on East Sussex County Council's 'The Stopping Place' GRT website, or from ISEND's Teaching and Learning Provision team.

Overarching priorities in East Sussex for GRT early years outcomes:

- Even where the school has no ascribed GRT pupils, to support all pupils to develop an awareness and positive attitude towards GRT culture, countering any negative stereotypes and racist attitudes they may be exposed to elsewhere;
- Ensuring all GRT pupils, including those who may not be ascribed, can see their culture and interests positively included and valued within their school;
- Building and maintaining parents' trust in the safety and relevance of the education system for their child, including those parents with high levels of anxiety and/or other barriers to full engagement;
- Maximising the success of transitions into school (for parents and children), and improving rates of attendance - building a positive association with the education system, laying strong foundations for parental engagement, and supporting the high levels of wellbeing and involvement that are essential for accelerating progress;
- Increasing the number of pupils who are ascribed as Gypsy/Roma or Traveller of Irish Heritage on the ethnicity form, so that there is a clear picture of the GRT community's engagement with education, and to ensure any cultural needs are identifiable;
- Promoting high expectations for GRT pupils, with early intervention to support any emerging difficulties relating to learning, wellbeing and safeguarding.
